

BOTOX® & DYSPORT® therapy

Botulinum Toxin, commonly known as Botox or Dysport, has been widely used in the medical field for over 20 years and is FDA-approved for cosmetic purposes. This neurotoxin can relax muscle contractions, making it effective for cosmetic treatments.

When used for cosmetic reasons, Botox is injected into specific facial muscles that cause expression lines, such as frown lines, crow's feet, and lines around the mouth. Over time, repetitive muscle movements lead to the development of wrinkles and folds. Botulinum Toxin can also treat Hyperhidrosis (excessive sweating) in areas like the underarms, palms, and soles of the feet. It has shown success in managing chronic migraines as well.

The amount of Botulinum Toxin required varies based on factors like muscle mass and activity. It typically takes 10 to 14 days for the effects of Botulinum Toxin to become noticeable. A follow-up appointment is usually scheduled two weeks after the initial injections to assess the final result and determine if additional units are necessary.

The effects of the treatment generally last between 3 to 4 months, although individual factors like circulation, medication, and the immune system can influence the duration. It's important to mention that Botox cannot be administered if you are pregnant or breastfeeding.

To begin the process, the first step is to book an appointment with one of our doctors, who will analyse the area and provide personalized recommendations. Please note that a consultation fee of R600 is required in advance to secure your booking. The prepayment goes towards your botox charge, provided it exceeds the minimum value of R3000 and is undertaken within three months from the consult date. If not undertaken within the three months, the prepayment will be redeemed as the consultation fee.

Please let us know if you would like assistance booking an appointment or have any further questions.
